○Graduate School of International Studies

<Master's Course>

Global Studies Program

Conducting advanced research that can offer insight into the complex problems of global society requires more than language ability and expert knowledge alone. The purpose of this program is to foster researchers with the type of diplomatic, analytical, and problem solving skills essential in order to be able to contribute to the resolution of international issues and the creation of a prosperous future society.

To this end, the Graduate School seeks Applicants with the following interests and aspirations:

- Applicants able to conduct independent research into ways to address contemporary issues arising from a rapidly globalizing world.
- Applicants who can demonstrate leadership in Japan and on the world stage through the acquisition of expertise, language ability, diplomatic skills, analytical abilities, and critical thinking capacity.

Language and Communication Program

Through the execution of conscientious research into issues relating to language and communication within a global society, and through the synthesis of multifaceted and big-picture perspectives on the ways in which mutual relations affect the international situation, the Graduate School seeks to develop leaders with high-level communication and language skills, capable of independent action and problem resolution.

To this end, the Graduate School seeks Applicants with the following interests and aspirations:

- Applicants who wish to promote mutual understanding through the acquisition of knowledge, tolerance, and a flexible and critical perspective towards their research objective, while simultaneously demonstrating leadership, high-level language proficiency, and diplomatic skills.
- Applicants who wish to contribute to society, domestically and internationally, through the cultivation of expertise and skills related to verbal communication, and who in the future will be working in professions such as junior high and high school English teaching (specialized license), interpretation and/or translation.

<Doctoral Course>

Global Studies Program

Building on the knowledge, methodological expertise, experience, and language ability acquired through fieldwork and theoretical study at the Master's level, the Graduate School seeks to cultivate researchers who exhibit leadership on the domestic and international stage through independent and high level research in research institutions, and in globalized society, in order to tackle, through practical measures, the problems facing an increasingly globalized world.

To this end, and in addition to the requirements for entry into the Global Studies and Language Communication Master's programs (see above), the Graduate School seeks Applicants with the following interests and aspirations:

- Applicants who exhibit extensive expertise in relevant fields at the Master's level, and who have the autonomy and independence necessary to conduct advanced academic research.
- Applicants who seek to conduct independent academic research, and who can work ambitiously to uncover the underlying causes of, and ways to resolve, issues within their field.
- Applicants who, through their studies in the Graduate School, seek to cultivate a high level of language proficiency and deep academic expertise, and who wish to become active researchers and competent professionals on the domestic and international stage.

Application Fee・Payment Method

Application Fee: 35,000 YEN

※The Application Fee cannot be refunded after payment.

※Please note that the payment method for those from outside of Japan is different from those residing in Japan. Please be sure to use the specified method. The application fee is not refundable under any circumstances.

Payment Method for those Residing in Japan

After filling in the necessary information on the Bank Transfer Request Form (available in the prescribed application documents), please complete the payment at the appropriate financial institution (bank, etc.) during the application period. Be sure NOT to detach Form A, B, C of the Bank Transfer Request Form when bringing it to the financial institutions (banks, etc.). After the payment is made, make sure that the stamp of the financial institution is marked on Form A, B, and C. The financial institution should keep Form C and return Form A and B to you. Please keep Form B (Application Fee Receipt) for your future reference.

Payment Method for those Outside Japan

Bank Transfer from Financial Institutions (Japanese yen only)

Please be aware of the following points when wiring money from overseas banks. All handling fees imposed by banks shall be paid by the Applicant, which include the fees for banks outside of Japan as well as fees for receiving banks in Japan. The exact amount will depend on the country and the institution. Therefore, please add some extra amount as the handling fee for receiving bank(s) when wiring money to Japan (This fee will be about 1,500 yen. Be sure to check with the overseas banks when wiring money). If there is any shortage in the payment, the remittance will result in receipt failure, and the Admission Ticket (Examination Voucher) will not be issued until the balance payment is made. In addition, please carefully note that when the balance payment is not made, permission for taking the examination will not be given. The Application Fee will NOT be returned under such a circumstance.
